Patients can lower their risk through:

- Better diet and exercise
- Avoiding tobacco and alcohol
- Adhering to prescribed medications

Having one heart attack increases a patient’s risk of having another.

1 in 5 patients has a second cardiovascular event within a year of their first.

Health plans can support secondary prevention through comprehensive coverage for necessary treatments.

Secondary prevention reduces risks and saves lives.