

Prescription Drug Affordability Boards

AND PERSONALIZED CARE

Prescription drug affordability boards, or PDABs, aim to lower medication costs for state governments.

PDABs often fail to adequately consider the input of patients and the clinicians who treat them.

This narrow perspective can limit access to the full scope of treatments, encouraging a one-size-fits-all approach to patient care.

Patients need personalized care, not PDABs.

